

The User should be aware that the Where clause in a Group By will limit records before the records are grouped because a where clause works on the individual rows, if the User needs to limit records after they have been 'grouped' then the Having clause needs to be used.

The next examples will show the usage of the where clause and the order by, note that order by can be used on any column including the aggregated column ...